

Insight meets top designer Charlotte Sale...

These days when it comes to interiors, the simple additions make the biggest impression, with that splash of colour or unique design creating focus and a talking point! So, whether you're seeking new ideas, yearn inspiration for your business or simply want a gift that stands out, Insight has the answer in the form of Charlotte Sale.

A renowned glass artist, Charlotte Sale specialises in the design of, and production of, handcrafted glassware, with pieces that ooze chic modern detail, and that real individual quality. Graduating from the Royal College of Art, as well as honing her passion and flair for glass design at Wimbledon Art School and Edinburgh College of Art, Charlotte has progressed at an extraordinary rate, which didn't go unnoticed...

"After the success of my graduation show, I started to become inundated with requests and commissions for my work. Therefore, this meant that I naturally fell into establishing my own business, and thanks to such a high volume of interest, my passion for glass has blossomed and I now design and make pieces for a range of clients."

Each piece of glassware is handmade and designed by Charlotte herself, with commissioned work allowing her to adapt and create various designs, accommodating desires for specific colours and sizes. Her commitment to each piece shines through, with care and detail the key to such a beautiful and versatile collection. Her work has even been commended by The Sunday Times Katrina Burroughs: "Charlotte's Spritz series has a joyful dynamism that's absolutely irresistible!"

However, recognition for Charlotte's pieces doesn't end there as she was also featured on the BBC's Britain's Next Big Thing, along with being commissioned to design the Chrysalis Award for the D-Media at the Baftas!

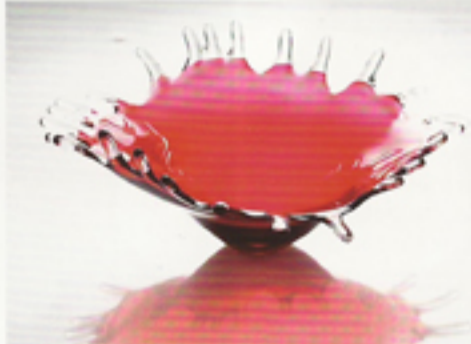

"Much of my work is commissioned from a variety of sources including galleries and even businesses looking to enhance their interiors, yet I am more than happy to discuss new ideas and current collections pieces with those simply looking for glassware with a difference!" Charlotte is also continuously adding new pieces to her collection, as well as updating her website with the latest shows and exhibitions. Plus, you can even keep up-to-date by following Charlotte on Twitter (@glass_csale) and Facebook (Charlotte Sale Glass), so if you fancy seeing her work in person then check out the latest dates for shows!

Finally, Charlotte emphasised: "I am always creating new designs and absolutely love to experiment, providing inspiration on pieces for every type of environment and genuinely driven to produce pieces that go beyond expectations. I want to get each piece exactly right and therefore am always open to discussions and commissions whatever the clients wants!"

Wonderful wedding gifts: stand out from the crowd with unique glassware

15 APRIL 2010

With every wedding comes a great deal of organisation, perhaps a little stress, and a budget that may tighten the purse strings for years to come.

So what better way to reward the bride and groom for all their hard work than with a personal gift by which they can remember their special day for the rest of their lives?

While many happy couples request a contribution to their honeymoon or a selection of household appliances, some guests may prefer to give something a little different.

Luckily, we have the perfect solution in Charlotte Sale, new artist on the block and creator of handcrafted glass pieces - the perfect addition to the home of happy newly-weds.

Highly skilled in glass blowing, kiln forming, lampworking, sandblasting and stained glass, award-winning Charlotte - whose custom-made glass shoulder-pads were worn by Fergie in the Black Eyed Peas Imma Be Rocking That Body Video - will personally design a piece to suit your needs.

The stylish pieces - a selection of which can be found at Liberty this summer - can also be engraved with a message of congratulations.

With prices range from £50 to £3,000, choose a glass gift as the perfect token present to accompany your honeymoon contribution, or a more extravagant piece to stand alone.
